Résumé — Le processus de reconnaissance du statut de réfugié au sens de la Convention de Genève, tel qu'il est énoncé dans la Loi sur l'immigration, sert à déterminer si les personnes qui revendiquent ce statut y ont effectivement droit et peuvent bénéficier de la protection accordée aux réfugiés au sens de la Convention. Ce processus s'est avéré inadéquat, tant au point de vue juridique que pratique. Dans ce bulletin, on examine les mécanismes en vigueur actuellement et le projet de réforme contenu dans la loi C-55 déposé en mai 1987.

INTRODUCTION

Microlog: Canadian Research Index puts all of Canada's hard-to-find government and research literature at your fingertips. This monthly indexing, abstracting and document delivery service covers all levels of government in Canada, as well as institutions receiving research grants. Most titles included in Microlog are available in either paper or microfiche format. Combined with a microfiche collection, the Microlog Service is a powerful tool for finding Canadian report publications. The unique Microlog Accession Number is the key to immediate retrieval of any document.

SCOPE

Among other documents, Microlog includes research papers in physical, natural and social sciences, policy papers, important statistics, and annual reports. Every effort is made to ensure the currency of the index. For instance, documents appearing in the Checklist of Canadian Government Publications are delivered by Microlog approximately two months after publication of the list.

LANGUAGE POLICY

Documents issued in English or French are indexed and abstracted in the language of publication, while bilingual documents are indexed and abstracted in both languages.

SOURCES AND COVERAGE

Federal Documents: The Microlog editors review all checklists issued by the Canadian Government Publishing Centre and order every document relevant to the service. Except for serials, maps, pamphlets, and manuals, all monographs covered by the Federal Depository Plan are included in the index. Also, a special effort is made to track down elusive but important titles which do not appear in the lists.

Microlog offers a special collection of documents published by the Federal Government but not issued through the Federal Depository Plan. These titles, available to subscribers as the Non-Depository Publications collection, are indicated in the Titles section by a bullet (•). Microlog is also the direct distributing agent for many government bodies.

Provincial Documents: Depository arrangements with several provincial libraries have been established to ensure that Microlog subscribers receive all publications from those provinces. Where no depository arrangement exists, all publications lists issued by the province are reviewed for acquisitions.

Municipal Documents: Since these titles are very difficult to obtain, the Microlog editors make special efforts to include publications from municipal sources.

ACCESS

The Index provides access by subject, corporate or individual author, and series title.

The full Microlog file from 1979 to date, consisting of almost 50,000 records, is available online through Can/OLE. This is an ideal way to locate hard-to-find reports which may then be ordered directly online through the Can/DOCS service. Contact: Can/OLE Client Services, CISTI, Ottawa, Ontario, K1A 0S2.

FEATURES

Microlog comprises the following sections:

1. Titles and abstracts: A full bibliographic citation and a descriptive abstract for each title.
2. Name Index: Access by personal author, corporate author, and conference name.
3. Series Titles: Lists by title and number all reports in series in the service; series are available as an ongoing subscription or retrospective collection.
4. Subject Index: Descriptors based on Library of Congress and Canadiana Subject Headings are assigned to each document. A cross-referencing structure assists searchers.
5. Microfiche collections: Lists contents of each fiche collection for quick reference. These collections can be used as current awareness lists in broad subject areas to notify users of new acquisitions. This section is included in the annual cumulation as a separate fished product.

MICROLOG AND CANADIAN STATISTICS INDEX

Statistical Material: The Canadian Statistics Index (CSI) provides further access to statistical material contained in Microlog monographs and special or annual reports. The CSI identification number has been included with the Microlog citation for the convenience of subscribers to the CSI fiche collection.

Annual Reports: Storage of annual reports in a single sequence has been a problem for clients in the past. The CSI numbers for annual reports are now listed in the bibliographic citation and appear on the microfiche header of each report, to make such sequencing possible.

DOCUMENT DELIVERY

INTRODUCTION

Microlog: Index de recherche du Canada met à votre disposition toutes les publications du gouvernement et les travaux de recherche difficiles à se procurer. Combiné aux collections sur microfiches, le service Microlog constitue un outil très efficace pour retrouver les publications des différents gouvernements du Canada, ainsi que celles des organismes qui reçoivent des subventions pour la recherche. Microlog est aussi un service de livraison de documents, sur microfiches ou sous forme imprimée.

CONTENU

Microlog contient entre autres des recherches en sciences physiques, naturelles et sociales, des énoncés de politique, des statistiques et des rapports annuels. Par l'intermédiaire du service Microlog, on peut obtenir les documents qui figurent sur la Liste des publications du gouvernement du Canada environ deux mois après leur parution sur cette liste.

POLITIQUE LINGUISTIQUE

Les ouvrages publiés en français ou en anglais sont indexés et résumés dans la langue de publication; les ouvrages bilingues sont traités dans les deux langues.

SOURCES

Publications fédérales: Les rédacteurs de Microlog examinent les listes émises par le Centre d'édition du gouvernement du Canada et commandent les documents pertinents. En dehors des publications en série, cartes, brochures et manuels, toutes les monographies régies par le Programme de dépôt du gouvernement fédéral figurent dans l'index, ainsi que des ouvrages importants ne figurant pas sur les listes.

Microlog propose aussi une collection spéciale de publications fédérales non déposées, identifiées par un point (•) dans la section Titres et résumés. Microlog est aussi l'agent de diffusion de nombreux organismes gouvernementaux.

Publications provinciales: Des ententes de dépôt ont été conclues avec plusieurs bibliothèques provinciales pour que les abonnés de Microlog reçoivent toutes les publications de ces provinces. Lorsqu'aucune entente n'existe, les listes de publications émises par les provinces sont examinées afin d'acquérir les documents.

Publications municipales: Ces ouvrages étant difficiles à se procurer, les rédacteurs de Microlog redoublent d'ardeur pour les inclure dans l'index.

ACCÈS

L'index imprimé est bilingue et les publications sont répertoriées par sujet, par auteur (collectivité et personne physique) et par titre de collection.

Le fichier complet de Microlog, de 1979 à aujourd'hui, contient près de 50,000 notices et est accessible sur

Can/OLE. Il s'agit d'un moyen idéal pour mettre la main sur des rapports difficiles à trouver qu'on peut commander par l'intermédiaire du service Can/DOCS. À ce propos, veuillez vous adresser au Service à la clientèle Can/OLE, ICIST, Ottawa (Ontario), K1A 0S2.

ORGANISATION DE L'INDEX

Microlog est divisé en cinq sections:

1. Titres et résumés: tous les titres sont catalogués et accompagnés d'un résumé descriptif.

2. Index des noms: donne un accès par auteur, collectivité-auteur et titre de conférence.

3. Titres de collections: tous les rapports publiés en série sont classés par titre et numéro. Ces collections peuvent être commandées individuellement.

4. Index des matières: les descripteurs permettent de trouver facilement les publications pertinentes; un réseau de renvois facilite la recherche.

5. Collections de microfiches: chaque collection apparaît dans une section séparée pour faciliter la recherche. Ces listes peuvent aussi servir à renseigner les usagers sur les nouveautés. Dans la refonte, cette section est insérée sous forme de microfiches.

MICROLOG ET L'INDEX DES STATISTIQUES DU CANADA

Données statistiques: L'Index des statistiques du Canada (CSI) constitue une autre source de référence sur les statistiques contenues dans certaines publications indexées dans Microlog. Celles-ci ont un numéro d'ordre spécial qui est inclus dans la référence bibliographique.

Rapports annuels: Afin de rendre le classement des rapports annuels plus facile, le numéro d'ordre CSI correspondant à ces documents figure maintenant dans les références bibliographiques et est inscrit sur les en-têtes de microfiches.

LIVRAISON DE DOCUMENTS

On peut s'abonner à l'ensemble ou à certaines des collections de documents de Microlog. On peut également commander des reproductions de documents sur microfiches ou sur papier par l'intermédiaire du service de livraison de documents de Micromedia. Pour commander, communiquer avec:

Sample CRI Search

"How can a person from a foreign country qualify for refugee status in Canada?"

The researcher can search in CRI as in any library catalogue - by subject, author and title.
Because the index is bilingual, searching can be done in English or in French.

Recherche type avec IRC

"Comment une personne d'un pays étranger peut-elle demander le statut de réfugié au Canada?"

La méthode de recherche dans IRC est la même que dans une bibliothèque, puisque les documents sont indexés par auteur, par sujet et par titre. L'index étant bilingue, la consultation peut se faire en français ou en anglais.

STEP 2/DEUXIÈME ÉTAPE

A unified search strategy

The search strategy should include all the monthly issues. Start with the most recent issue and work back. Monthly issues are cumulated annually.

Établir une stratégie de recherche unifiée

La stratégie de recherche doit tenir compte de toutes les publications mensuelles, à commencer par les plus récentes. Chaque année, ces publications font l'objet d'une refonte.

STEP 3/TROISIÈME ÉTAPE

Retrieve the publication

Each bibliographic citation gives a full description of the relevant document. Locate the document by the microfiche number in the library's collection or order from Micromedia. Individual publications are available for purchase on microfiche or paper. The bibliographic description provides publisher source information.

Repérer la publication

Chaque notice bibliographique comprend une description complète du document; celui-ci peut être repéré grâce au numéro de microfiche de la bibliothèque; sinon, il faut le commander à Micromedia. On peut se procurer les monographies sur microfiches ou sur papier. La description bibliographique comporte également des indications sur l'éditeur.

Ce projet de recherche porte sur l'efficacité des pratiques de gestion favorisant l'équilibre travail-famille. Dans un premier temps, on présente une enquête sur les pratiques d'ETF implantées dans les organisations. Dans un deuxième temps, on offre des études de cas détaillées des coûts et bénéfices (exprimés en dollars) de quelques pratiques d'ETF particulièrement intéressantes qui ont été mises en évidence dans la première phase.

Nous avançons dans cet article, que le concept d'analyse de traductions peut servir de fondement à l'élaboration d'une nouvelle génération d'outils informatisés à l'intention du traducteur. La deuxième section de cet article est consacrée à une description générale de la notion d'analyse de traductions. Les sections 3,4 et 5 décrivent les travaux réalisés au CITI sur trois applications : une mémoire traductionnelle, un vérificateur de traductions et un système de dictée pour traducteurs.

The Annapolis Basin of Nova Scotia has been proposed as a potential site for Atlantic salmon farming but traditional fisheries in scallop, lobster, groundfish, and clam maintain that salmon aquaculture will impact on their resources. This report provides an historical perspective of the scallop fishery in this area and information on the scallop beds that support the fishery. The results of a June 1993 biomass survey are also given along with data on the spatial distribution, age class structure, growth rate, meat yield, and condition of this stock.

This report contains a reference guide on multimedia and an annotated bibliography on the same subject. The bibliography is a basic list not intended to be exhaustive. We limited our reference research to technical magazines and books. We were more interested in subjects related to the developments in the Medialog or Multinews projects. We tried to find basic references instead of articles or books that only mention the keyword "multimedia". We also chose several references on subjects that do not cover multimedia exclusively, such as databases, object-oriented programming and others. The bibliography in the report was drawn up in September 1993.

The Canada-Alberta Partnership Agreement in Forestry initiated a Woodlot Program designed to encourage the management of private forest land in Alberta. This study was undertaken to determine the economic feasibility of operating a private aspen woodlot vs using the same parcel of land for various agricultural ventures. The study determined the factors that most influence financial returns from a woodlot venture, the possibility of positive financial returns from woodlot production, and a comparison of predicted financial return from woodlots to other common land use options. A spreadsheet model was used to analyze the cash flow of different scenarios that represented different assumptions of productivity and price. For each scenario, the cash flow of the enterprise was predicted for the next 30 years, then the return of the enterprise was determined as expressed by the net present value of the stream of revenues and expenses. Where applicable, the internal rate of return was also calculated to determine whether the initial investment would be considered.

Analysis of children's written texts to determine the progress of their writing ability using 48 samples of individual writing produced by the most and least mature writers in each class followed over the course of two school years (1985-87). Focuses on the meaning and language in the text from the perspective of child-constructed structures, theory of composition, and systems of rationality. Concludes that children gain progressive control over a symbolization system as they move from oral to written discourse; that it is possible to identify emerging ideational and textual structures and the purposes of their narratives; and that by engaging in writing, principles of rationality and mental models of alternative possibilities of representation are established. Includes the stories discussed.

Assessed a professional development program for district level consultants based on earlier research that found differences in the strategies used by expert and novice consultants to help teachers. Used case studies, action plans, and feedback on experience to stimulate reflection in small group activities, using consultants from school boards, with consultants as leaders instead of academics and clearer in-service materials and directions in year two. Assessed the effects of the program by measuring achievement through interviews on strategies used before and after the in-service; personal characteristics such as the perceived importance of consultant activities; institutional characteristics such as interviews with superintendents; and in-service processes such as audio recordings of consultant deliberations. Concluded the program had a positive effect; that consultant learning was affected by personal characteristics; and that in-service processes were the best predictor of learning.

The Caisse is an autonomous institution in its investment management operations that was formed in 1965 to manage the funds arising from various public pension and insurance plans. Its mandate is to ensure that the funds under its administration generate a profit through investments and also to support Quebec's economic development. To achieve these objectives it uses such investment vehicles as bonds, shares and convertible securities, mortgages and real estate investments. The annual report reviews the year and the economy in general, describes the asset mix, and then discusses the fund's administration and investment operations before providing the financial statements.

La région du lac Shortt constitue la partie occidentale de la bande de roches vertes de Caopatina-Desmaraisville située au sud de Chibougamau. Cette région, qui renferme des gisements d'or particuliers, a fait l'objet d'une étude dont le but principal était de caractériser la minéralisation aurifère ainsi que son contexte stratigraphique et structural. Pour ce faire, les indices d'or de la région ont été étudiés. Suite à cette étude, il ressort plusieurs points pouvant être utiles aux travaux d'exploration.

tion. Ce document porte précisément sur la caractérisation pétrographique et géochimique de la minéralisation aurifère de la région du lac Shortt.

Summary of the results of the latest phase of a research program begun in 1983 to predict the performance of a vessel in level ice and to better understand the ship/ice interaction. This project enhances the original version of the CARTER's mathematical model by reassessing the dynamic interaction between the ship's forebody and a floating ice sheet. Explicit expressions for all ice resistance components were derived as a function of major ship hull characteristics, ice properties, and ship speed to make the predictive model applicable to conventional and unconventional bow forms moving continuously in level uniform ice. The model studied the relative influence of parameters such as beam, forebody length, and midship flare angle on the total ice resistance. Results are compared with full scale performance data for a broad spectrum of ship types.

Research conducted in 1985-86 to examine the nature and consequences of literacy based on the relationship between the development of literacy and oral language competence as seen by the ability to distinguish the form from the content. Examines the relationship between children's metalinguistic skill and early reading acquisition through use of the Say/Mean task. Measures interpretive skill in text comprehension through standard recall and comprehension questions and those that depend on making and recognizing inferences and distinctions between what was said and what was intended. Indicates an increasing relationship between performance with the inference items on the task and scores on more standardized measures of reading skill up to grade 5. Studies the relationship between metalinguistic competencies measured in these tasks and aspects of reading comprehension based on the hypothesis that those who recognize the ambiguity of sentences in the Say/Mean task will be the same as those who recognize inferences as such in the Text Comprehension task and that competence in these tasks will be related to aspects of reading skill, particularly in the middle school years.

Obtained baseline information about children's understanding of the nature of knowledge and learning through individual interviews of children from grades 3, 5, and 6. Examined their notions of long-term learning by asking what they would do if given one hour per week for one year to learn anything they wished, how they would learn it, and how would they recognize success for the first, 10th, 20th and 30th weeks. Also interviewed six adults, all with at least a master's degree using the identical format. Results indicated grade 3 children view learning as an additive process, while those in grades 5/6 see it more as learning goals, and adults see it as an intentional action with goals based on personal interest or needs. Appeared that children need to develop, and can be taught, a more mature understanding of learning goals. They should also have the change to use self-assessment as feedback on their progress.

A study was initiated to establish a national microburst climatology, to determine the extent of microbursts' existence, and the optimal placement of possible detection systems at airports. The study examined intensive field experiments on microburst detection already carried out in the United States; identified standard meteorological parameters that are indicative of their presence or absence; and related these parameters to similar situations that may exist in Canada and established their frequency of occurrence. The resultant algorithms were applied to the archived regular hourly surface meteorological observations and upper air soundings from the Canadian Climate Centre. The regional weather offices of Environment Canada were also surveyed for historical cases of suspected microburst events.

Les moisissures constituent une menace sérieuse pour les musées et les dépôts d'archives canadiens. Pour prévenir les dommages, il faut vérifier l'état des lieux et régler les conditions ambiantes. Les méthodes non chimiques sont les plus efficaces pour détruire les moisissures. Les méthodes chimiques (fongicides, produits de fumigation) ne devraient être utilisées qu'en dernier recours, en cas de désastre. Ce document examine le contrôle des moisissures dans les musées.

Tests the feasibility of using professional development or specific skills training as a strategy for school improvement using 50 experienced grade 7-9 teachers over six months as part of ventures to support the Transition Years initiative. Administered teacher efficacy and implementation practices tests to teachers, and attitudes towards seeking and giving help to peers tests to students. Concluded that the in-service training had an impact on teacher practice; that beliefs about their ability to bring about student learning (teacher efficacy) remained stable; that the more teachers participated in in-service training the more likely they were to be more confident about the capacity of teachers to reach all students; and that student attitudes toward helping each other changed more in the classrooms of teachers whose efficacy scores increased.

Countering violence in families and communities : schools' initiatives and the role of educational television

Considered how TVOntario can best support schools' and communities' efforts to address family and social violence. Identified and described 15 types of activities using Ministry of Education guidelines, programs being introduced in school boards and schools, curriculum initiatives, resources for teachers and students, and professional development activities. Shared themes included the need to place a higher priority on children's needs, the value of teaching alternative strategies for resolving conflicts and of promoting human equality, the desire to work in a cooperative community-wide fashion, and the growing requirements for professional development opportunities for teachers. Recommended strategies for consolidating and continuing TVO's support include producing and promoting a flyer that features existing and upcoming programs related to violence prevention, and a consideration of the roles educational television can play. Also included more specific suggestions for programs needed to support violence prevention initiatives for children, youth, teachers, parents, and the general public.

Analysis of education videodisc material, by subject area and distributor, available in the marketplace in 1986 and 1991 based on the Educational Videodisc Directory (1986) and the Videodisc Compendium (1991-92). Both examine the North American market and include Canadian and United States products, with some French-language materials included that were designed for foreign or second-language instruction. Findings indicate production increased from 122 in 1986 to 1,422 in 1991, although degree of instructional design varies greatly. Prices for true instructional materials are considerably higher than for mass-market titles. Listings in science and mathematics in 1991 each represent a smaller percentage of the total market than in 1986, while listings in the arts, health, social sciences, and training represent a larger share in 1991 than in 1986. New areas in 1991 include training, teacher training, driver training, environmental science, and foreign languages. Titles from each publication are listed along with information on subject, interactivity, target audience by grade, distributor, and the availability of support material.

This study is concerned with developing a competitiveness test which may be used to assess the efficacy of government direct investment. It considers the rationale underlying government direct investment in Canada, providing an overview of both economic and social reasons advanced for particular investments. Next, it identifies and discusses the various types of government direct investment, providing examples (grants, loans, guaranteed loans, equity contribution, repayable contributions). Finally, a test is proposed and its application is discussed, followed by its validation, conclusions and recommendations.

Le deuxième propose d'adopter une conception large qui intègre toutes les composantes de la formation professionnelle. Le troisième propose d'opter clairement pour une planification stratégique, basée sur une meilleure connaissance de la réalité, en lien avec une planification de l'emploi et favorisant la cohérence des approches. Le quatrième rappelle qu'il est urgent d'assumer l'in-

Projects that receive Transport Canada funding, regulatory approvals, or land commitments must undergo environmental screening as early as possible in the planning process. This is now conducted following the guidelines of the Environmental Assessment and Review Process (EARP). This environmental screening manual was prepared in response to a need for a consistent and formal environmental screening approach in Transport Canada Atlantic Regional offices, especially with the future reporting requirements of the Canadian Environmental Assessment Act (CEA) and the potential expansion of the National Highway Program projects to other regions of Canada. The manual covers the requirements of both the present EARP and the new CEA as well as background information, step-by-step methodologies, and reproducible tools for use in the environmental screening of highway projects.

L'Évaluation économique des bénéfices environnementaux appliquée à la gestion intégrée des ressources, perspectives et limites des méthodes : coûts de trajet et évaluation contingente

Le Gouvernement du Québec faisait connaître récemment sa stratégie d'intervention en matière de "gestion intégrée des ressources". Cette stratégie consiste notamment à développer une approche de gestion intégrée des ressources renouvelables, forêt, faune et eau, tout en prenant en considération la protection du paysage. Cette étude est divisée en cinq chapitres. Les deux premiers traitent de l'évaluation économique des biens environnementaux de façon générale; le premier aborde la pertinence d'une telle évaluation et le second décrit les principales sources de valeurs associées à ces biens. Le troisième chapitre décrit la méthode des "coûts de trajet", les principaux biais de cette méthode et les principaux éléments à prendre en compte dans le cas spécifique de l'évaluation des réserves fauniques. La même démarche est reprise dans le quatrième chapitre mais cette fois-ci en décrivant la méthode d'évaluation contingente. Finalement le cinquième chapitre décrit brièvement les perspectives et les limites de ces évaluations.

The purpose of this review of the evaluation literature was to explore the effectiveness of prevention strategies so that promising programs might be implemented to address recent increases in suicide rates among young adults. Prevention strategies that have not been evaluated are not included in the review, but may be discussed in the interviews with field workers. This review does not address the etiology of suicide in young adults, which is a topic for another paper.

Review of spawning habitat characteristics of verified lake trout spawning sites in inland lakes and the Great Lakes to provide a synthesis for identifying new Great Lakes sites. A literature review was conducted on the establishment of self-sustaining populations with hatchery fish along with a comparison of available information on spawning habitat characteristics of hatchery lake trout where they co-occurred with native lake trout. A second part of the review was a workshop organized to draw together those with either extensive knowledge of Great Lakes lake trout spawning characteristics or intensive knowledge of individual spawning site characteristics. An assessment of spawning habitat characteristics was also made by evaluation of habitat manipulation studies. A review of existing methods of sampling for the identification of spawning habitats and their characteristics was also conducted.

The Anisakis type I larvae that have been observed in the bodies of fish and the sagittated calamary squid Ommastrephes sloanei pacificus have all had a length of at least 19 mm; to date none shorter than this length have been reported. This indicates that the larvae are already 19 mm or longer at the time they invade a fish's body. A species from the family Euphausiidae, Euphausia similis, was selected for infection experiments. The infective materials employed in the tests were second-stage (Anisakis) larvae.

Study of the development of integrative feminisms in North America and England to establish if such a transformative tendency had also emerged in England; whether it had been sustained in North America; and to examine the diversity more closely and thoroughly than an earlier study on the same theme in the 1970's. Involved re-interviewing selected samples of the respondents from the original study; interviewing additional feminist in the United States and in Canada to include more diverse and more recent feminists; and replicating the research in England. Indicated a significant increase in the diversity of women who were becoming active as feminists in North America and England and the emergence of feminism as a global movement. Feminists of colour in the North and Third World feminists played a large role, thus expanding the study to include Third World feminisms and the impact of these on First World feminisms. Also included lists of conferences attended, interviewees and publications of the author.

Investigated methods used by teachers of learning disabled adolescents for one-to-one read-alouds and tested a teacher training intervention designed to provide techniques for fostering active reading and intentional or self-directed learning in their students. Participants included volunteer teachers currently teaching learning disabled students in high schools, junior high schools, and middle schools in a borough of a large metropolitan city; and two students from each teacher's group with reading levels between grades 4 and 6. Analyzed and rated the sessions using dimensions involving both teachers and students. Results were the same for both middle school and junior high and high school. Teachers and students showed considerable change, including a fall in simple experience-based questions and an increase in the more difficult probing questions.

Developed a diagnostic guide for practising and prospective teachers of early French immersion based mainly on French language proficiency data derived from theoretically oriented OISE projects conducted over the past few years. Also addressed the gap between theoretical research and educational practice in second language education. Covered features of the French verb system, gender distinctions, vocabulary development, and making requests in French. Also provided concrete examples of what early immersion students can and cannot do at different levels; diagnosis and interpretation of students' further learning needs; suggestions for age-appropriate classroom activities to address those needs; and sample diagnostic items for teachers to use in monitoring students' progress.

Identified strategies in solving transformational geometry problems that could result in the designing of an instructional unit to enhance student performance. Examined holistic and analytic strategies with 10 male and female subjects selected from grades 7 and 8 who were able to express what they were doing/thinking while solving problems. Analyzed questions that produced greater difficulty or the use of various strategies and classified each student's strategy in relationship to them. While there was considerable variation in strategy, the analytic method was more likely to result in success. Holistic strategies were more likely naive, while the analytic were more likely based on school learning. Students appeared to move from holistic to analytic strategies in some domains, making it likely that the use of analytic strategies depends on greater cognitive development.

Inertial sensor performance requirements for a long range artillery rocket (U)

With continuing advances in rocket propulsion systems for extended-range artillery, it is possible that operational ranges of 60 km (up from 30 km) will be the norm within 20 years. If the munitions are unguided, the dispersion errors at these long ranges, due to such factors as muzzle velocity errors and down-range weather conditions, make effective use of such rounds prohibitively expensive. This report investigates the performance required of inertial components that could be used for an onboard guidance system that would enable the rocket to determine its position to a sufficient level of accuracy.

Response to a request from the Minister of Education for research into innovative sharing practices among Ontario school boards. Reviewed relevant literature, sent questionnaires to all Ontario school boards about the sharing of various services, and interviewed administrators at several boards. Asked boards to identify: all shared services or facilities, the sharing arrangement, the financial implications, the degree of satisfaction with the shared arrangements, and other types of sharing arrangements. Found a wide range of shared services among school boards, with transportation showing the greatest involvement. Most sharing arrangements were positive in nature, although some boards reported negative aspects.

This report presents the story of women who have come to Canada sometime in the last thirty years and who have endured physical, sexual, emotional, verbal, spiritual, and/or financial abuse from their husbands or partners. It is about the women who have survived this abuse without being able to speak English or French well enough to seek help in one of Canada's two official languages. It seeks to understand their experiences of loss, despair, and suffering in a world where the women may not be able to make even a simple request for help.

Project to study the mechanism of power transmission losses in heavy truck forest operations and to understand the potential for minimizing these losses by gear lubricant optimization. To study gear losses, a class 8 tandem axle truck was obtained and instrumented for on-board data acquisition. Truck testing was conducted on a test track, on public highways, and under the controlled climatic conditions of an all-weather chassis dynamometer (AWCD). Lubricant optimization was conducted by using a variety of laboratory methods including a twin disk machine and a variable temperature axle efficiency rig. A series of gear oil fuel economy candidates were evaluated in the test truck vs an 80W-90 reference oil. The final candidate, containing selected components and optimized viscometrics, was evaluated under simulated log hauling drive cycles in the AWCD.

The purpose of this paper is to examine the competition policies of the United States and Europe in comparison to that of Canada to answer 2 questions. Does Canadian competition policy hinder the global competitiveness of Canadian business in comparison to trading rivals in the U.S. and Europe? And, Does Canadian competition policy enhance the competitiveness of Canadian businesses as they vie for market share in Canadian and world markets? The analysis proceeds as follows. First, a general discussion of competition policies is presented. The 2d section considers the 1986 Competition Act of Canada: changes from the previous law, enforcement, and enforcement history. Next, a brief description of competition policy in the United States is followed by the state of competition policy in the European Community, most specifically Germany, the U.K., and France. The 5th section is a discussion of the differences among Canadian, U.S. and European policies and enforcement guidelines. The paper concludes by attempting to answer the questions posed.

The purpose of this bulletin is to enable museum and art gallery staff to become more aware of problems associated with museum lighting and of techniques minimizing the deterioration that may be caused by it. The bulletin begins with a general description of the nature of light and an explanation of concepts and quantities which must be understood in order to examine the problems. The characteristic differences of radiation from different sources, such as natural lighting, fluorescent lighting and incandescent lighting, are examined, as well as the implications these differences have with respect to photochemical deterioration. Recommended safe lighting levels are given. Practical ways of reducing levels of lighting intensity and eliminating the most damaging portion of the radiation are also discussed, while considering psychological factors relating to the shift in colour temperature as lighting intensities are decreased.

This document was produced to guide TVOntario management and production teams in developing skills programming and a long-term skills plan for all sectors. Analyzed 19 recent Canadian and United States reports on training needs, all of which warn that Canada, like North America generally, is facing a serious skills crisis at a time of growing demand for capable workers. Summarized the training needs of people in the workforce, the recently unemployed, people with limited or interrupted work experience, women, immigrants, and youth. Used demographic and social data to outline the respective situations of each group and put their training needs into context. Within each group, categorized learning needs according to general literacy, communication, and awareness; personal and health issues; management; and human resources issues. Suggested that TVOntario become involved in generic skills programming, direct industry-specific teaching, technological awareness, interpersonal skills, public awareness, prevention, programming to provide options and choices, and narrowcast programming. Appendices include summaries of each of the 19 reports.

Radar electronic support measures (ESM) systems are faced with increasingly dense and complex electromagnetic environments. Traditional algorithms for signal recognition and analysis are highly complex, computationally intensive, often rely on heuristics, and require humans to verify and validate the analysis. This paper investigates the use of artificial neural networks as an alternative technique to classify pulse-to-pulse signal modulation patterns. The paper discusses the fundamentals of network construction, training, behaviour, and methods to improve the training process and enhance a network's performance and presents results and a description of the classification experiments.

The intended focus of this two-year tracking study was on graduates' success or failure in obtaining full-time teaching employment in Ontario, but the process also yielded much information on student teachers' attitudes to teacher education. The survey provided information and conclusions about the 1990-91 graduating class from concurrent programs and one-year consecutive programs in Ontario teacher education institutions. Subjects were 5,080 English- and 417 French-language graduates. In addition to employment status and perceptions of teacher education, findings also included personal and demographic data, educational background, views on relocation for employment purposes, reasons for becoming a teacher, qualifications, and perceptions of the first year of teaching. Data on other professions, and on teaching in other jurisdictions helped to place the research in a broader context.

Provided information about the educational needs of Ontario's ethnocultural groups and programming options to assist TVOntario in identifying and meeting those needs. Findings indicated little information about the television viewing habits of the groups, although first generation members appeared to watch third language broadcasting and later generations watched the same programs as the rest of society. Recommended that programming reflect both integration and contribution to Ontario society as well as the distinctiveness of the cultural groups. While the groups have many of the same educational needs as the general population, they need to see themselves reflected in the broadcast media. They also need a central source of information about social services, health care, training, employment, and their specific language and literacy needs. Suggested seven approaches to programming to help TVO serve these groups. Appendices detail TVO's approach to multiculturalism since 1971 and the evolution and present state of broadcasting policy as it relates to multiculturalism.

Prepared for Transportation Development Centre, Policy and Coordination, Transport Canada ; by Brian M. Guthrie, Peter Friedrichs and Andrew J. Phillips. Ottawa : Hickling Corporation, 1993. xxix, 86 p.

This report presents the results of an operational feasibility assessment of the low level loading bridge, a concept developed to enhance the accessibility of small aircraft to people with mobility disabilities. The report presents the views of airports and air carriers on issues involved with design and operation of the device within current operational structures. Operational issues include general issues, safety, design, and operational and passenger considerations. A strategy is suggested for future development of the concept, based on parallel technical and market development streams.

An extensive growth of Potamogeton crispus develops annually in Rice Lake, Ontario, adding an estimated 12 tonnes of phosphorus by the peak growth period in June. Senescence of the crop normally occurs in June and proceeds rapidly once initiated. Expected P. crispus senescence have not been recorded and the fate of tissue bound phosphorus is not well understood. This study was initiated to determine whether significant quantities of phosphorus are stored in P. crispus turions or root biomass and to determine whether significant phosphorus loss occurs from stem and leaf tissue prior to senescence. Plant samples were taken in May and June 1988 at weekly intervals from two areas. After drying, samples were analyzed for moisture content, organic content, phosphorus, nitrogen, and potassium content. This report gives the results of the analysis.

L'annonce en juin 1993 selon laquelle la majeure partie du programme d'immigration relèverait dorénavant, du Ministère du Solliciteur général, puis, par la suite, d'un nouveau ministère de la sécurité publique a entraîné d'autres questions concernant le point de vue des Canadiens et du gouvernement sur les immigrants et l'immigration. Il va sans dire que cette étude ne répond pas à ces questions : elle vise plutôt à dresser un tableau de la situation qui permettra aux lecteurs de mieux saisir la portée du programme d'immigration. Elle fournit en outre des renseignements de base sur un domaine du droit, de la politique gouvernementale et de l'administration publique qui peut se révéler très complexe.

Analyses of phytoplankton samples collected weekly and year-round at municipal water supply intakes in Lake Erie have shown a response to long-term changes in phosphorus loading and the more recent invasion of zebra mussels. This paper reports on long-term chlorophyll and phytoplankton data collected at four nearshore sampling sites in Lake Erie. Changes were expected in response to declines in phosphorus loading and the recent invasion of zebra mussels. Two upstream control sites in southern Lake Huron are included for reference. Data analysis is concentrated on the 2-3 year periods preceding and following the arrival of zebra mussels in Lake Erie.

Dans ce document, après avoir donné un bref aperçu général de la démocratie représentative, nous expliquons pourquoi la culture politique du Canada a changé et comment cette évolution s'est traduite par un intérêt croissant pour certains instruments politiques tels que la révocation, l'initiative populaire et le référendum. Nous examinons ensuite ces instruments ainsi que les arguments pour et contre leur utilisation dans le contexte de la politique canadienne. Nous étudions également les répercussions que ces instruments politiques, qui correspondent davantage aux principes de la démocratie directe plutôt que représentative, auraient sur la démocratie représentative au Canada.

The paper goes on to examine these instruments and the various arguments both for and against their use in the context of Canadian politics. The impact of populist political instruments on representative democracy in Canada is reviewed, especially since they are more in line with the tenets of direct, rather than representative, democracy.

Compte tenu de ces faits, nous avons cru intéressant d'examiner la réforme de la fonction publique du Royaume-Uni afin de voir si le Canada peut en tirer des leçons. Conséquemment, dans ce document, après avoir examiné brièvement le projet du gouvernement du Canada, Fonction publique 2000, nous nous penchons sur l'expérience vécue au Royaume-Uni, puis nous tentons de voir de quelle façon le Canada pourrait tirer profit de celle-ci.

Ce document vise à faire connaître des projets qui s'inscrivent dans la foulée du Plan d'action gouvernemental et à favoriser l'échange d'information avec les organisations intéressées à profiter des compétences acquises et des résultats obtenus dans le cadre de ces projets. Après avoir défini le Fonds d'initiative et les mécanismes qui le régissent, nous présentons les projets sous forme de fiches-synthèses regroupées par ministères et organismes. Chacune des fiches précise la nature du projet, la durée prévue, les objectifs, l'impact escompté, les organismes associés au projet, de même que les sommes engagées et les responsables du projet.

Report of community economic development consultation tour

First Expressions Communications. Regina : Saskatchewan Economic Diversification and Trade, 1990. 47 p.
MICROLOG 94-05975 (1 fiche)

Over 300 invited guests were involved in a tour conducted by the Ministry of Economic Diversification and Trade in February and March 1993. This report outlines some of the main concerns of the business and community leaders, responds to ideas and suggestions, and suggests action communities can take themselves to achieve their objectives. The concept of a financial vehicle that would raise funds from Saskatchewan residents, be administered by local townspeople, and be used to enhance the economic opportunities in their own community was discussed at each meeting. A short review of all the discussions, arranged by community, is included. Issues include access to financing, education, government programs, tourism, strengthening local economies, and expanding opportunities. Model communities described include the Town of Balcarres, the Town of Eastend, the Village of Dysart, the Schmidt Brothers of Strathburg, and Gary O'Hara of Kyle.

Report of a workshop conducted to identify the degree to which the management objectives for groundfish in the Scotia-Fundy Region have been met or not been met since 1977 and to identify the causes that prevented successful attainment of the objectives. The report describes the objectives of groundfish management, the temporal trends in fish biomass, and fishing mortality; a broad range of management action from 1977-93; and the response of the fishing industry. Management actions included the response of the fishing industry. Management actions included the scientific advice, development, and implementation of management plans, and enforcement, while scientific advice included changes in fishing practices that followed the various management initiatives. For each subject area, there was an attempt to evaluate whether the empirical observations were sufficiently well described that conclusions could be drawn. Final discussions addressed the degree to which the management objectives of conservation, economic performance, and employment had been met.

American-Standard owns and operates a bathroom fixtures manufacturing plant in Metropolitan Toronto. In 1989, the plant generated over 1,500 tons of solid waste which was hauled to Metro landfills at considerable cost. In addition, the sludge storage capacity in the plant was very low and could not be increased due to site restrictions, necessitating higher frequency of sludge transportation to the disposal sites. After a study was conducted on the feasibility of recovering and recycling its solid wastes, the company, with the financial help of the Ontario Government, constructed a wastewater treatment and solids recovery and recycle system. This report describes the system and its implementation, discusses the environmental gains and deviations from the original plans, and gives a comparison between estimated and actual recycle rates and cost savings.

In 1983, the British Columbia Government ended a periodic mandatory private vehicle-inspection program. Since that time, there have been a number of requests to re-instate the program. This study was initiated to assess whether a cost-beneficial program exists or could be developed that would improve highway safety through the reduction of accidents, particularly those with fatalities or injuries. The study identified the type and extent of existing major private vehicle-inspection programs in North America and included any reported evaluation of their effectiveness and efficiency; analyzed statistics of accidents caused by defective or unsafe motor vehicles in B.C. or other jurisdictions; assessed the impact of vehicle-inspection programs on vehicle fitness and road safety; and conducted a survey of the public's opinion on the importance of such a program, the awareness level of the current private program, and the level of support for a mandatory program.

Child development is a pattern of movement influenced by the interplay of several processes: biological, cognitive and social. One framework that captures much of this dynamical systems approach was advanced by Vygotsky. This paper shows that Vygotsky's framework is particularly apt in a multicultural society. Focusing on Vygotsky's Zone of Proximal Development (ZPD) concept as well as the author's own theory of development, this paper shows that dynamic assessment and instruction concepts are particularly responsive to the needs of minority students; those who are disadvantaged in respect to the mainstream culture as well as those who are new to that culture.

The Canadian economy is undergoing profound and continuous structural changes that are re-ordering not only the basis of economic activity in this country, but also the relationships between business, labour and government. The process of economic restructuring requires changes in institutions and organizations to make an effective transition to a new economic environment. This report is a recognition that we have to search for better ways of working together. This report aims to provide advice to governments on how best they can promote and support business-labour approaches to economic restructuring. The report is organized into two main parts. The first section outlines a set of general principles developed by the CLMPC Economic Restructuring Committee common to successful joint business-labour initiatives. The second part puts forth a set of 12 recommendations on the roles of government in supporting business-labour approaches to economic restructuring.

Pacific Coast Processors operates a shore-based fish processing facility in Ucluelet Harbour on the west coast of Vancouver Island. The plant has diversified from traditional processing lines to include a pilot surimi line that was installed in 1991 and implemented on a limited commercial scale in 1992. Concern over the disposal of wastewater from the surimi line directly to the harbour resulted in the addition of an inline screen drum with a 0.010 inch mesh. Wastewater from the screen is pumped into the harbour. The British Columbia Government was concerned that the present discharge may be contributing to oxygen depletion within the receiving environment and issued an order in April 1992 for the implementation of a wastewater characterization and receiving water monitoring program. This report addresses the technical components of the order, providing a third-party environmental situation audit for the portion of Ucluelet Harbour affected by the existing outfall for the PCP plant.

Two papers represent the results of work carried out on the Blatchford Lake intrusive suite and the associated Thor Lake rare-metal deposits of niobium, tantalum, beryllium, yttrium, rare-earth elements, and gallium. A detailed gravity survey and computer modelling provides an understanding of the three dimensional geometry of the 23 km wide Blatchford Lake. Another paper summarizes some of the extensive pegmatite research done by the University of Manitoba in the Northwest Territories during the 1980s, providing information on the geological setting, geochemistry, and economic potential of four previously undocumented or poorly known rare-element pegmatite occurrences at Ayler Lake, Torp Lake, Chantry Inlet, and the Foxe fields in the Rae Province. Another paper presents a thorough documentation of the geological settings, characteristics, and metallogeny of selected mineral occurrences in the southern part of the Proterozoic Great Bear magnetic zone.

To improve rainbow trout broodstocks through a development program, a review of existing broodstocks was conducted, including existing British Columbia commercial stocks, B.C. Ministry of Environment, Lands and Parks (MELP) domestic and wild stocks, and other broodstocks from the northwestern United States and Ontario. The survey characterized existing stocks for performance and genetic characteristics, and recommended characteristics and stocks for inclusion in the program. Interviews were conducted with commercial broodstock owners, users (trout farmers), B.C. MELP Fish Culture Section personnel, U.S. trout farmers and researchers, and Ontario researchers. A survey of pamphlets, provincial manuscript reports and published primary literature was also conducted.

The objective of this report is to provide a comprehensive evaluation on the level of disaster preparedness training in the province to be used as a basis for future decision making regarding legislation and funding. This report addresses two topics which had not previously been looked at in much detail: what disaster preparedness training is available; and what training has been taken by people who would deal with health issues during a disaster. The final section of the report presents recommendations for future action, based on the findings of the survey and training overview.

Bien que le Canada ait signé, en 1969, la Convention relative au statut des réfugiés (et le Protocole y afférent), la procédure d'examen des revendications du statut de réfugié présentées au Canada est restée peu structurée et a laissé place à une certaine discrétion jusqu'à l'entrée en vigueur, en 1978, de l'actuelle Loi sur l'immigration. Ce bulletin d'information se penche sur le système canadien de reconnaissance du statut de réfugié.

A key pest of strawberries in eastern Canada is the tarnished plant bug. This polyphagous insect has many hosts - both weeds and economically important plants. When these weeds are disturbed, e.g., by natural drying or by cultivation, the bugs on them migrate into fields of economically important crops including strawberry. This publication is developed from papers previously published or presented at scientific meetings by the contributors and other investigators in recent years. It summarizes some of the findings under one cover to help extension agents and growers develop better strategies for managing the tarnished plant bug on strawberries.

This document presents a method for managing cultured mollusc populations, following principles presently in use in forestry and silviculture sciences. This method is based on the analysis of the relationship between yield and population density, from which one derives what is called a B-N diagram. Therefore the method relies essentially on experimental results. It is useful in helping to assess correct seeding density and when applicable, assessing the nature of the factor responsible for overpopulation. We give different ways of obtaining a B-N diagram, how to interpret it, and present a simple example of its use, using the blue mussel as an example organism. The B-N diagram is applicable, however, to other molluscs, fish, algae, and perhaps crustaceans.

Les premières années d'établissement constituent pour l'immigrant une période cruciale qui, à bien des égards, conditionne non seulement la réussite de son projet migratoire mais aussi son intégration à la société d'accueil. Cette étude fournit une image relativement réussie des trois premières années de l'établissement des immigrants, tant au niveau de l'emploi que de leur localisation résidentielle (grande dispersion), de leur apprentissage du français, de leur investissement en termes de formation générale et professionnelle et de leur satisfaction personnelle en regard de leur établissement.

Described perceptions of educational television collected in the OISE biennial study on public attitudes toward education in Ontario in 1990. Areas studied included interest in courses on educational television, television program selection, and the public image of educational television. Findings indicated that 31% of Ontario adults participated in adult education programs in 1990 compared to 24% in 1988; that 14% followed a course on educational television in 1990 compared to 8% in 1988, with the proportion who would consider doing so increasing from 42% in 1988 to 46% in 1990; that 73% consider educational television important in furthering the education of adults; that 59% who would take a course feel the course should be for credit; and that 72% see credit courses as important and 68% see noncredit courses as important. The most widely used aid in selecting programs is weekend TV supplements or magazines, followed by channel switching.

Typology of French-language schools in Ontario

The study created a detailed, specific analysis of French-language education in Ontario. Outlined relations between the schools and their school boards thus identifying mixed-language schools or large French-language schools within predominantly anglophone school boards. Included an inventory of school boards according to degree of linguistic isolation and schools within each board. Also included an inventory of schools by region and grade level. The inventories indicated where French-speaking populations were isolated within their communities or within their mixed-language schools. Based on data relating exclusively to French-language schools and to French-language modules of mixed-language schools. Reconfigured data from the Ministry of Education for September 1988 to reflect 1989 changes in status or affiliation. Concluded that the most common relation between school and board was that of a unilingual separate school within a mixed-language board of a French-speaking majority, but that organizational structures continued to shift, with a trend toward homogeneous boards.

An efficient and effective system of land use planning is extremely important to the environmental, economic, and social interests of the people of Ontario. Ontario is now reforming this system, putting forward a fundamentally different vision of how the planning system should work, based on the extensive work of the Commission of Planning and Development Reform. This paper covers key changes the government is introducing. It discusses the reforms in terms of three different categories or topics: empowering municipalities, protecting the environment, and streamlining the planning process.

Spiny dogfish, commonly referred to as rock salmon, has been the basis for a fishery on the British Columbia coast for the past century, although demand has fluctuated. In the past few decades, the market for B.C. rock salmon has been sporadic and focused mainly on the European market. Most is sold for the fish meal market, but some is also used for human consumption. This study transferred on-board handling methodologies, developed for pelagic shark species, to the B.C. dogfish industry so that a high quality product could be used for the export food market. The study performed a comparative analysis on the effect of bleeding on the quality of dogfish flesh; compared the use of K-value and pH as indicators of fish flesh quality; evaluated freezing as a means of maintaining optimal quality; and assessed the potential for extending the vessel time at sea through the improvement of on-board handling methodologies.

Project to demonstrate, by field testing, the capability of vapour vents to reduce humidity and related condensation problems in wood heated houses in rural areas of Alberta. Three occupied houses in the community of Susa Creek, near Grande Cache, Alberta were tested during the 1992/93 heating season. In one house, vapour vents alone were installed. In the other two houses, vapour vents in combination with mechanical air supply systems were installed. Temperature and humidity conditions were monitored in each of the modified houses, as well as in a fourth unchanged house used as a control.

This report describes the results from a study of post-harvesting succession and conifer growth on 1-to-10-year-old clearcuts along a topographical sequence using the chronosequence approach. A chronosequence is a series of sites that at time zero were similar in all aspects (soils, vegetation, climate). It is assumed that climate does not change significantly, that all areas received the same type and level of disturbance, and that all areas have followed the same sequence of post-disturbance development. The study documented the changes in non-crop vegetation cover, height, biomass, and species composition and in the growth of planted Douglas-fir as a function of age of clearcut and slope position in a representative area of the CWHdm subzone in southwestern British Columbia.

Cette méthode est basée sur l'étude de la relation entre la biomasse et la densité de peuplement, d'où l'on tire ce qui s'appelle un diagramme B-N. Cette méthode repose donc essentiellement sur des résultats expérimentaux. La méthode est utile pour déterminer la densité optimale de population et, s'il y a lieu, déterminer la nature du facteur responsable de la surpopulation. Nous décrivons différentes façons d'obtenir un di-
